I've just received a worrisome email indicating that Uber has been told to cease and desist operations in SC. I'd like to make clear my objection. As a single woman, safe, reliable transportation is a priority for me. Uber vets their drivers very carefully, with multiple levels of background checks and insurance. I don't feel that cab companies can offer the same level of safety, and neither do they offer the convenience of cost estimates or smartphone apps. I believe this is a disservice to consumers, and should be reevaluated. I understand that many cab companies have objections on the basis of regulations, but it's probably time to look at legislation governing this sort of transportation and push forward the sort of changes that can include services such as Uber.

Thanks,

Jo Innes

Subject: Uber Service

As a regular business traveler to South Carolina I am disturbed by the Commission's order directing Uber to cease operations in SC. Cities, especially Greenville, have been woefully underserved by the conventional taxi industry, which historically has tried to advantage of its monopoly status and offer high prices and poor service (1 hour waits to get from GSP airport to downtown, for example). The emergence of a competitive alternative in the form of Uber should be encouraged by the Commission, not discouraged. Uber provides a safe and reliable alternative to taxis with fair pricing and real time feedback that customers prefer.

Please lift the Order and allow the market to function again for the benefit of consumers. Consumers who prefer taxis will continue to choose that alternative, though the likely consequence will be that the industry will be faced with an evolve-or-die decision. If the taxi industry dies out as the result of competition with Uber, it is not the Commission's role to prop up private businesses that are not serving their customers.
